When we look for something it's natural to think we should keep moving. When was the last time you stopped and let nature come to you?

Background: How often do you come to a complete stop just to observe your surroundings. You may be amazed at how many neat things you can find right at your feet.

Materials: String/rope, magnifying glass (optional)

Instructions:

- Head outside and choose an outdoor area for this activity.
- Use a piece of string/rope to mark out a circle on the ground about the size of a hula hoop.
- Crouch or lie down around the outside edge of the circle to become eye-level with the ground.
- Now, it's time to observe!
- Observers can use twigs to gently probe for wildlife.
- Draw your findings below.
